City Needs 5,000 Workers - Can You Spare A Room?

Mansfield industry began rolling up the curtain on Greater Mansfield—population 60,000 by 1950—by announcing today that it will need 5,000 additional workers in the next six months.

The forecast, made by C. W. Handley, manager of the Mansfield office of the United States Employment Service, after a special survey, means thousands of new citizens for Mansfield in the midst of an already critical housing shortage.

To meet this crisis a Civic committee has been formed to obtain housing for the new workers.

The committee, made up of representatives of industry, business, labor unions and the city administration, began today a city-wide "Rent That Spare Room" campaign in behalf of thousands of new citizens—jobless war veterans, unmarried and now living within a radius of 125 miles of Mansfield.

Highlighting the committee's program will be the dispatch of "Open Up Your Home for a Roomer" appeals to 10,000 Mansfield homes in the form of letters to be distributed by Mansfield Boy Scouts. A corps of 25 Mansfield women will follow up these appeals next week with a house-to-house canvass, concentrating on those homes whose occupants have never given a thought to room renting and the extra income they can derive from that source.

Here, in brief, is the industrial picture and the civic problem that it entails:

1. Through its requests for 5,000 additional workers, Mansfield becomes the first city in Ohio to be classified by the United States Employment Service as a post-war "labor shortage area." The city's current labor supply can provide less than 500 of the 5,000 workers needed. This means that the 4,500 others must be new faces—new citizens for Mansfield.

Mansfield's employment rolls, according to USES figures, now total 16,387 workers. If both the recruiting drive and the room rental campaign are a success, it means that the employment figure will be increased by approximately one third.

2. These new citizens must be recruited from cities and villages where labor surpluses exist. All will be carefully "screened" as to their desirability as citizens and all will be recruited from Ohio, none from points more distant than 125 miles from Mansfield.

3. The influx of these new workers—the USES has promised that all will be single men with the great majority jobless war veterans—must be housed in suitable sleeping rooms in private residences. To care for them will require an all-over effort on the part of Mansfielders, especially those who heretofore have never given a thought to renting a room.

Heading the Civic committee on housing is Frank A. Berkey, personnel director of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

BARES THEFT OF FILES IN GARSSON CASE

Chief Counsel Says Records Copied, Some Pages Still Missing.

WASHINGTON — (INS)— Chief Counsel George Meader of the senate Mead committee disclosed today that an investigation is under way into the theft of some committee records "about a year or so ago."

Meader stated that the missing files, which he termed "important," concern the Garsson case, which the committee has recently been investigating.

Meader declared that a committee employe, not now on the payroll, entered the committee room where the files were kept at about 2 a. m., extracted the files on the Garsson case, copied them and then returned both of them. A subsequent search had disclosed, he added, "that a few pages are missing."

Meader declared that the Mead committee had no knowledge of this until very recently. He said he had been advised of this by the Department of Justice about a week or 10 days ago.

Meader added that he did not know whether any arrest has been made.

FBI Silent.

At the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a spokesman stated that there was "no comment" to make.

It was believed that the discovery of the missing files was made during the Justice department's investigation of the Garsson case, growing out of the Mead committee hearing.

The committee, headed by Sen Mead (D) N. Y., has been probing the 78-million dollar in war contracts obtained by the Midwest Munitions combine of Henry and Murray Garsson.

Meanwhile federal representatives closely investigated the giant Andrew Higgins industries and the Garsson Brothers' munitions combine, including the part played by Rep. Andrew J. May (D) Ky.

Attorney General Clark announced that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is looking into the Garsson firms and that a decision regarding possible grand jury proceedings will be made following the government inquiry.

At the same time, J. Frank Cunningham, special attorney of the Justice department, reported in New Orleans that a federal grand jury is investigating the Higgins industries for possible fraudulent claims against the government.

TOLL GROWS

20,000 Homeless in Wake of Quake, Tidal Wave.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, D.R.,—(U.P.)—The government health department estimated today that 20,000 persons were homeless in the north coast area of the Dominion Republic which was devastated by a week-end earthquake and tidal wave.

Luis Thomen, secretary of the health department, said about 2,000 persons were isolated in the Julia Molina area, lacking food or shelter except for meager provisions dropped from planes.

Thirty-six bodies were recovered at Arroyo Delgado, 16 miles north of Matanzas on the northeast corner of the island, Thomen said, and more may have been washed out to sea.

Truman Succeeds In Purge

Unseats Slaughter As Axtell Wins Easily In Missouri Vote.

President Truman and backers of his move to unseat Rep. Roger C. Slaughter came out on top today. The Missouri congress member had called the election "a fight to determine the future course of the Democratic party."

Complete returns from the Fifth Missouri congressional district primary gave Enos A. Axtell, 37 year old former navy lieutenant the Democratic nomination by 2301 votes over 2-termer Slaughter. Mr. Truman had announced he favored Axtell.

Jerome Walsh, former OPA enforcement attorney, ran a distant third.

Axtell's November opponent will be Albert L. Reeves, jr., ex-lieutenant colonel of the army engineers, Republican nominee.

Slaughter was one of the few congressional incumbents defeated as voters in Missouri, Virginia, West Virginia, Kansas, New Hampshire and Arkansas chose party nominees in primaries yesterday.

CIO-PAC LINES UP WITH PRESIDENT

The CIO-PAC and the Pendergast political organization of Kansas City lined up with Axtell and the president. Mr. Truman had condemned the incumbent as an obstructor of administration legislative aims in the powerful house rules committee.

Blame Storm In Death of Mrs. Yuncker

A rainstorm, an open window and a stairway were blamed today for the death of Mrs. Olivia Henry Yuncker, 50, wife of Leo Yuncker, co-owner of the Yuncker Bros. sporting goods store. Mrs. Yuncker died late yesterday at Mansfield General hospital from injuries suffered in a fall at her home, near Butler, early Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Yuncker was reported to have suffered internal injuries early yesterday when she fell down a stairway after she got up to close a window during a rainstorm.

Mr. and Mrs. Yuncker returned two weeks ago from a trip to Canada with Dr. and Mrs. O. H. Schettler.

Born in Mansfield, Nov. 3, 1895, Mrs. Yuncker had spent her entire life in this community. She moved to her new home near Butler about three years ago.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two brothers, Louis Henry of Macon, Ga., and Carl Henry of Cincinnati.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 1:30 p. m. at the Finefrock funeral home by Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

Polio Reaches Its Peak Season

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The peak season for infantile paralysis began today with the number of cases reported to the state health department totaling 165.

This compares to 170 reported at the same time in 1944, the peak years for the disease in Ohio. At the same time last year, only 95 cases had been reported.

Truman Casts Ballot In Missouri Purge

President Truman casts his ballot in the primary elections at the Independence (Missouri) Memorial buildings while his daughter, Mary Margaret, steps aside after casting her vote. The whole nation watched the Missouri voting in which Mr. Truman's favored candidate, Enos Axtell, defeated Rep. Roger C. Slaughter whom the president opposed, for the Democratic congress. Standing beside the president is George Wallace, his brother-in-law, a Democratic judge at the Seventh precinct, First ward. Seated is Republican Election Judge Ray Pryor.

CITY ASKS VOTE ON TAX LEVY

Council Requests Election Board to Put Recreation Issue on Ballot.

City council last night opened the way for a vote at the November election on a two-tenths mill tax levy to give Mansfield a supervised recreation program.

Council's action last night asks the county election board to put the recreation levy issue on the ballot in November.

The proposal calls for a levy to be in effect for five years and to provide approximately $12,000 a year to finance a year-around recreation program set up under a city department of recreation employing full-time supervisors.

Emil Eisen, president of the Mansfield Public Parks association, is chairman of a committee to organize a campaign for the needed 65 per cent vote to pass the tax levy next fall.

Eisen said today that formal organization of the campaign to bring the issue squarely to the public by a house-to-house canvass would get under way late next month.

Castalia Picks Its First Mayor

SANDUSKY—(AP)—By an unofficial count of 181 to 126, Harry S. Miller is the first mayor of Castalia, a community of about 500 persons which was incorporated earlier this year.

Miller, an office worker employed by a cement company at Bay Bridge, defeated Walter S. Sedgwick, Justice of the Peace, in a special election held yesterday.

Drone Flight Places World In U. S. Range

Air Chief Points Out Atom Bomb Could Be Put on Unmanned Plane and Directed Anywhere.

By CHARLES M'MURTRY

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The historic flight of two unmanned B-17 drones from Hilo, Hawaii, to Muroc air base, California, today was termed the forerunner of accurate, long range guided missiles armed with atomic warheads.

Brig. Gen. William L. Richardson, chief of the Army Air Force Guided Missiles division, said the unprecedented radio-piloted flight proved the air force could have struck a target at 2,500 or more miles range with any conventional bomber-unmanned—and added:

"The atom bomb to us is a warhead. We fully expect some day to have larged guided missiles with atomic warheads."

Richardson did not elaborate. He timed a western trip to be at Muroc dry lake, for the drone landings yesterday. He flew a "drone mother" (control) ship for the aerial atomic bomb drop at Bikini June 30.

He did not say, however, that the air force "has just scratched the surface in guided missiles."

En route from Muroc to Hamilton field, where he confers today with Fourth Air Force officials on defenses against guided missiles, Richardson said:

"Operation Remote (the drone mission) proved we have control equipment which will operate reliably at least 15 hours, sufficiently to take any conventional heavy bomber 2,500 or more miles. That aircraft could have been loaded with 5,000 pounds of TNT or other explosive. It would not have been necessary to fly the mother up to the target. The mother could have stood off 50 miles and directed the drone in and picked out the target.

"We could have done it with B-32s or B-35s or any other bomber—and with the same control equipment."

Using B-32 or similar bombers, with a range of 10,000 or more miles, Richardson pointed out, the United States could strike almost any point on earth with guided missiles.

LaGuardia Claims Russians Take Austrian Products.

GENEVA—(U.P.)—Director General F. H. LaGuardia of the UNRRA accused the Russians today of draining off Austrian products badly needed by the Austrians, and in effect called on the organization's council either to back him up or throw him out.

Speaking for two hours and five minutes before the UNRRA council, LaGuardia charged that the Russians contracted for the delivery of 15,000 tons of crude petroleum from Austria to Czechoslovakian firms, and requisitioned land with a potential production of some 70,000 tons of foodstuffs a year.

SEES DECISION IN 3 WEEKS ON PLANE SERVICE

M'Gregor Says City Will Know This Month When Air Lines Will Use New Port.

Mansfield today was promised "within two to three weeks" a Civil Aeronautics Board decision on the applications of airlines to serve its new $2,000,000 municipal airport.

J. Harry McGregor, congressman for the 17th district which includes Mansfield, notified the News-Journal that he was advised the "examiners' report" on the applications still in process.

But, he said, "a definite decision within two to three weeks" is expected.

James M. Landis, chairman of the CAB who spoke at airport dedication ceremonies July 20, said then that a decision on the air lines' applications probably wouldn't come before October.

The major airlines seeking to schedule flights into the Mansfield port are United, Eastern and Trans-World.

PRINTS STILL UNIDENTIFIED

Police Continue Check of Marks Found on Body of Ashland Woman.

ASHLAND—No identification of the fingerprints found on the body of Mrs. Kate Semler, 48-year-old divorcee, or on the wooden cistern cover had been made at noon today, police said. The cistern cover is believed to have been moved by the person who carried the razor-slashed body of the woman to the cistern.

Meanwhile, unfounded reports quoted Police Chief Harry Smith as promising "new developments" in the mystery-death within 24 hours. Chief Smith was reported "out of the city for the rest of the day" when the News-Journal attempted to reach him at noon today.

Mrs. Semler's body was found floating in four feet of water in the backyard cistern of her Maple street home last Friday by her war veteran son, Robert, 24.

Her estranged husband, Howard Semler, who also resides in Ashland, told police that he had not seen his ex-wife since their divorce became effective on Dec. 19, 1942.

Washed bloodstains on the back steps of the house and on the cistern cover were the only evidence of blood found outside the house, police said. Police said that there was no trail of blood from the house to the cistern.

The bathroom walls were reported streaked with blood, and a blood-stained razor believed to have been used in the slashing of Mrs. Semler's throat and wrists was found in the bathroom.

Both police and Ashland county Prosecutor C. W. Chorpening said that no arrests had been made today and that no one was being held as a suspect.

CANTON—(AP)—Traffic moved normally today over the Pennsylvania Railroad's four tracks here after a collision of two eastbound freight trains injured three train crewmen, derailed a locomotive and 18 cars, blocking tracks for hours.

Pulls a 'Dagwood' In Reverse

NEW HOPE, Pa. —(INS)— Commuters who use the Reading company line today described a "reverse strip-tease" by an unidentified "dagwood."

They said the man arrived in an automobile at the New Hope station just two minutes before the early train. He was clad in underwear, sox and shoes. The rest of his clothing was in the car.

As the other commuters watched, the late sleeper pulled on his trousers; then his shirt and tie and grabbed his coat just as the train pulled in to the platform.

17 INJURED IN BUS CRASH AT BUCYRUS

Vehicle Hits Tree as Driver Attempts to Avoid Collision With a Car.

BUCYRUS — Seventeen persons were treated for injuries at Bucyrus City hospital today after the Greyhound bus in which 36 passengers were riding crashed into a tree at the intersection of West Oakwood avenue and South Poplar street shortly before noon.

Police said only two of the 17 injured, Mrs. Lillian Starr of Bucyrus and Walter Fuhst of Detroit, Mich., were held for more extensive treatment. Mrs. Starr suffered lacerations of the scalp and a possible skull fracture and Fuhst received a fracture to the nose and possible skull fracture.

Officers reported the bus crashed into the tree after its driver, Thomas E. Murray of Delaware, swerved to avoid striking an auto driven by Mrs. Starr, who, police said, failed to observe a stop sign. The bus was en route from Columbus to Detroit.

Police Patrolman John W. Caldwell, who was himself treated for battery acid burns on his face received when he disconnected the battery cable on Mrs. Starr's auto, reported that the front ends of the car and the bus were demolished after both rammed trees. Murray and Fuhst were pinned in the front end of the bus, he said.

ENDS WRANGLE

Peace Conference Agrees to Yugoslav Proposal.

PARIS—(AP)—The peace conference rules committee resumed its sessions today after coming out of a marathon wrangle over voting procedure and voted unanimously for a Yugoslav proposal to permit neighboring states of former Axis powers to present questions direct to the foreign ministers council.

The committee had adjourned at 12:30 a. m. after 20 hours of debate in which it was finally decided over the embittered opposition of Soviet Russia and five other members her bloc to adopt a British compromise on the voting machinery.

The Yugoslav proposal adopted today will permit that country, Poland, Czechoslovakia, France and other neighbors of the Rome-Berlin Axis to submit their proposals direct to the foreign ministers of the four principal powers without going through the present 21-nation peace conference.

CHARGE FATHER, TOO

NEWARK —(AP)— The Licking county grand jury which on Sept. 16 will head first degree murder charges against Ralph Hoffer, 22, will also hear charges that the youth's father, Robert S. Hoffer, 53, unlawfully harbored his son after the fatal beating of Thelma Anderson, 17, last July 27.

BRUTAL KILLER SIGNS THREE CONFESSIONS

Says 'George Murman,' His Bad Side, Led Him to Rob and Kill.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—William Heirens, 17, today concluded a horrifying confession of his career of crime — a career which included the slaying of little Suzanne Degnan and two women, multiple assaults and an estimated 100 or more burglaries.

He claimed he has a dual personality—a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Winding up an almost continuous 14-hour session in which he matter-of-factly recited details of the killings and then calmly re-enacted them, the burly University of Chicago student signed three separate confessions, said his prayers and went quietly to bed in his jail cell.

There, he will wait for the courts to decide whether he lives or dies. He gave the confession to the state's attorney, at the written request of his heart-broken parents, in a bid to escape the electric chair.

Heirens, who tended to "black out" on parts of his confession, said he had a strange dual personality—with a good side and bad side—which caused within him a conflict between right and wrong.

'George Murman' Wins.

The bad side, which he named "George Murman," appeared to have won the fight most of the time since he was 14.

George Murman he told questioners, "is as real as anybody else to me."

"He exists. When I say he brings things for me to use, I actually mean it. He brought things for me to use, and I took them."

Heirens appeared a normal, healthy youth, kind to his parents, a devout church-goer and a "gentleman" to coeds he dated at the University of Chicago.

But in his confession he said he deceived his parents and prowled Chicago homes at night under the urge of what he described as "the devil in me."

He said he named his bad self George, perhaps because his own middle name is George, perhaps because his father's first name is George.

Asked if he thought that George Murman and Bill Heirens were

Army's In Tizzy Over Shade of Blue To Use In Its New Winter Uniforms

Should They Be Solid Color or Two-Tone, Public Asked.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The army has authorized blue winter, off-post uniforms for officers and enlisted men, but it is in a tizzy over what shade of blue the American public would prefer.

Determined that the defenders of national security shall be second to none in saratorial smartness, the army just can't decide whether the uniforms shall be solid color or two-tone—that is, dark coats and light trousers.

And so—it is going to ask the public to do some observing and reacting this fall when soldiers will wear sample uniforms at public gatherings.

This will be preceded by surveys in several army camps in which teams will demonstrate sample uniforms. In addition to dressing up the soldier in blue, the army is considering replacing the olive drab and khaki WAC uniforms with one of a more vital green. It would be worn with russet accessories.

The new blue uniform for men will be the same for officers and enlisted personnel with the exception of insignia.

The proposed blues include an overcoat and a cape, the latter with bright colored linings.

Four shirt colors—white, ecru, gray and blue—are being considered. Shoes will be black or cordovan, socks midnight blue or black, and ties midnight blue, medium blue or black. The army is wrinkling its brow over whether gloves should be white, chamois, blue or black.

The uniform jacket has been shortened to correspond more smartly with higher-waisted trousers.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK — By a strange, subtle process, the American citizen has been placed in the position of tax-payer to Britain, Russia, Italy, and many other countries, his wages, savings and estate subject to partial confiscation for the benefit of their people.

The allowance that he may claim for the support of his own wife, children and other dependents is below the line of poverty and admittedly was not regarded by congress as adequate for even the meanest existence. Beyond those deductions, the citizen must immediately begin to pay income taxes which then are subject to the demands of foreign nations.

He finds he is buying food for strangers beyond the seas before his own family is fed or clothed or housed and if he should insist on putting down a full, detailed, reasonable and provable account of the actual cost of supporting his own family, beyond the legal allowance and should claim a deduction of that figure, he would be faulted by internal revenue and compelled to pay a tax on that difference, plus interest starting at six per cent.

On the other hand, even those amounts which are advanced to other countries in the guise of loans, bear, at most, only a nominal rate of interest, the effect being that our nation exacts a harsh rate from our own people while our opposite numbers in the debtor countries are either excused entirely or asked to pay only token interest.

And, if the citizen of, say, Britain, through his government, defaults his payments, it is not even pretended that the creditors, meaning the Americans, shall have any means of attaching the earings or property of those foreigners in their own lands By contrast, if the American defaults his taxes, his government may proceed to sell him out, particularly if he has died, and collect the deficit and the six per cent from the estate which he has tried to leave to carry on, after death, his moral obligation to his dependants, his wife, for instance.

Except in a few western states the federal income tax rejects the proposition that marriage is a material or economic as well as a spiritual partnership and holds that a wife's share of the husband's earnings is a gift, not a share. He may give her, at present, $3,000 a year free of taxes after an initial gift of $40,000, but, beyond that amount, must pay taxes applicable, in part, to the cost of social and political experiments outside the United States. But he must keep a record of his gifts to his wife and report them to Washington and should he fail to do so, upon his death these gifts will be regarded as part of her inheritance and will be taxed.

It is the habit of those who defend all this, to argue that $40,000 is an enormous amount and that a wife who has received $40,000 and, say, $15,000 in annual gifts of $3,000 each, is rich. She may be rich by comparison with a widow with no money at all or $10,000, but the income on that $55,000 at three per cent, would be only $1.650 a year, subject, incidentally, to income tax, and subject, also, to the risks of investment under a government which has made investment precarious.

True, she might, and probably would, try to guess her own life expectancy and draw on her principal but that is a delicate problem of reckoning.

The old popular theory of the purpose of taxation was that citizens supported their government in return for services to them. Under the Roosevelt government propaganda charged this concept to the extent that many citizens now believed the primary and legitimate purpose was to sock the rich, and distribute their accumulations.

Wealth, of itself, was condemned as somehow pernicious and a menace to the poor and the government. Yet, when such wealth has been collected from the estate of a rich man, it is spent for the expenses of government, including, nowadays, the expenses of other governments and thereafter pays no taxes as it would in the possession of heirs.

Just where riches begin is a debatable question but congress made a political and social decision, without economic basis, in establishing the $40,000 figure.

BAMBERG, Germany — (AP) — The only corporal in the Third regiment of the French Moroccan Goums who holds a major general's rank in the American army is Uncle Sam's chief cop overseas —Ernie (Old Gravel Voice) Harmon.

His honorary rank with the dusky Goums — comrades of the campaign in Italy—is only one of some 25 medals and honors won by Harmon, chief of the new mobile constabulary force in Germany, during the war years.

Now in peace this chunky, squint-eyed veteran has inherited the mantle of Gen. George S. ("Old Blood and Guts") Patton, jr., his former boss, as the toughest, roughest-talking commander in the army.

Harmon has been given the hardest job in the reich he helped conquer—the task of building 30,000 constabulary troopers into a fast-moving, hard-striking force able to police and control the American zone when the rest of the occupation army goes home.

In seven-a-day inspection speeches he tells his men:

"You're going to be soldiers the German people have to respect. I never had a second-rate outfit, and I'm not going to start now. You're going to be the best outfit in the American army—if you aren't already."

Harmon likes personal contact with his men. He speaks their language, knows their tricks. He is stern with them but they like the way he has of cracking down and removing inefficient or pretentious officers.

Ernie is short, heavy-set and bald with close-set eyes like an angry porcupine and a manner of speech that resembles W. C Fields'. His voice sounds as if it had to fight its way out through gravel bed in his larynx, and that gave him his nickname. Nobody ever has been known, however, to use it to his face.

At 52 Harmon, a pentathlon athlete in the 192[illegible] Olympics at Paris, still walks the boots off his young staff officers. He is an intense worker, an expert organizer and his chief quality as a leader is his ability to transmit his own competitive spirit and morale to his men.

During a convivial party at which he was standing beside a giant Russian commander, he squinted up at his ally and told his interpreter:

"Tell that big guy the only things I like to do are eat, drink and fight."

The remark was right down the big Russian's alley. He and Harmon became fast friends.

DRAFT OF CITY BUILDING CODE DUE NEXT MONTH

Mapping New Downtown Fire District Delays Work, Councilman Says.

A tentative draft of a proposed building code for Mansfield will probably be completed in early September, Councilman Fred Miller, chairman of city council's code committee, said today.

He said one of the main problems is to determine where the city's new No. 1 fire district will be. It is to be extended and tentative boundaries have already been suggested by Fire Chief L. J. Steele, he said.

Buildings within the first fire district would have to comply with the stricter terms of the building code and be virtually fireproof, Miller pointed out.

"But the new boundaries are only tentative and more study will have to be given them until final zones are decided upon," Miller declared.

Outlines Area.

He said the new boundaries, as recommended by Chief Steele, would start at Sturges avenue and West First street, go east along West First to North Adams, then north along Adams to Park avenue east, then east along Park avenue east to the Pennsylvania railroad. From there the boundary would be extended back along Park avenue to North Adams street again, north along North Adams to the Pennsylvania railroad.

From the Pennsylvania railroad it would extend northwest to the B. and O railroad and then southwest along the railroad to North Mulberry street, along West Fourth street to Bowman and then south to West First.

Councilman Miller said that the architect drafting the code plans, Herbert S. Jones, is also attempting to procure the latest information concerning building materials.

"In this way we can be fairly sure that when we draw up the final code we'll have made allowances for the latest developments in building materials," Miller said.

URGES NAMING OF INSPECTOR

Councilman Says Enforcement of Sewer Measure Would End Complaints.

Councilman Russell Porch last night recommended to city council the re-employing of a sewer inspector to enforce legislation which prohibits draining of sewage into storm sewers and roof water into sanitary sewers.

He pointed out that the city at one time hired an inspector, adding that numerous complaints about sewage in storm sewers prompted his recommendation.

The recommendation was referred to council's sewer committee headed by Councilman Clifford Knarr

Concerning the same subject was a letter from Dr W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, which was read to council.

Dr. Wild's letter stated that the Mansfield board of health has approved a motion recommending that council conduct a city-wide survey to determine where sewage lines are draining into storm sewers

Dr. Wild has declared, however, that the survey should be made in conjunction with a proposed area-wide sewer improvement program, to keep down cost of the survey and to eliminate unnecessary work. His letter was also referred to Knarr's sewer committee.

STORK INTERRUPTS—

City councilmen heard a special piece of "legislation" last night and it caused a momentary relaxing during an otherwise fast-moving session. The "legislation" contained no "whereases" and "wherefores." It just announced that at "8:46 p. m. at General hospital a son was born to Service-Safety Director and Mrs. William W. Enlow." All THREE were reported "doing well" and Enlow even appeared for the latter portion of the council meeting—with cigars and a smile of relief!

However, when the customs officer found that she had been born in France, he refused to let her off the boat without seeing her citizenship papers. Since these were at home, Mrs. Buzzard's situation looked desperate. Finally, after much rummaging and discussion, she presented a card which permitted her re-entry into the U. S. And what was this magic card? Her membership in the American Legion auxiliary!

AMBITIOUS PET—

When Capt. Frank Merrigold of Cleveland was injured yesterday in an auto crash en route to Mansfield, his big Dobermann Pinscher which rides with him took one look and a lick at his master's face and decided to explore the countryside, but was caught and tied by an Ashlander. Last night Lt. Thomas Blackburn of the Mansfield army recruiting station brought the dog to Mansfield for the captain and the dog became very much attached to him, refusing to leave Blackburn's side and just about tearing up everything in sight when anyone else comes near. So it was with a sigh of relief that Lt. Blackburn turned the animal over to his owner when Capt. Merrigold called for him at the recruiting office this afternoon.

FUND PROVIDES CITY'S SHARE OF HOME COST

Legislation Also Puts OK on Purchase of More Land For Clear Fork Lake.

Voting a bill every four minutes, city council last night enacted 33 pieces of legislation, including a measure which sets up a $15,000 veterans' housing fund.

Councilmen wiped the docket clean of a two-month stack of legislation in two hours and 10 minutes. Most of the bills were voted under suspension of the rules and without discussion from the floor.

The housing fund will enable the city to pay its share of installing 75 government-donated temporary apartments to be erected on two sites in Mansfield.

The apartments have already been allocated to the city. They will be erected by the government. The $15,000 fund permits the Mansfield Housing Authority to lease or buy land for the units, construct streets and sidewalks, extend utilities, buy furniture and manage the project. Near Mifflin, 75 other units are being sponsored by the McVey Post, American Legion.

Buys More Land.

Other legislation authorizes the purchase of 276 more acres of Clear Fork reservoir land for $25,775 and appropriates $28,575 for improvement of the police-fire signal system and the extension of alarm service to the Woodland district.

Clear Fork reservoir land was authorized to be purchased from the Irene M. Heubner farm, seven acres, $700; the R. I. Baker farm, 36.5 acres, $2,372.50; the R. I. Baker farm, 81 acres, $8,627.50; the E. W. Thomas farm, 130 acres, $13,000, and the Merel C. Thomas farm, 21.5 acres, $1,075.

Actual purchase will boost to about 1,787 acres the city's Clear Fork land holdings, leaving some 350 acres still to be purchased. It will mark the first purchase of land since June.

City officials are still awaiting approval of the reservoir plans by various state and federal agencies before advertising for dam building bids for the $800,000 water project.

A $12,000 fund was also authorized to provide for the drilling of a new well in the Clear Fork valley and moving present Treisch well equipment to the new well. An appropriation of $475 was approved for the rental of a pump and motor for the Brooker well.

The fire-police department improvement bills, authorize expenditure of $8,000 for moving the departments' signal system to new, expanded quarters, in the city building; a $14,950 project to install an underground alarm conduit from Wood street to Woodhill road and the purchase of 45 new fire alarm boxes for $5,625.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT?

Suspicion is a horrid thing;
Persistently it tends to cling.
—Old Mother Nature.

It is good to be kept busy. Mr. and Mrs. Redeye the Vireos were finding it so. They had found one of their babies on the ground beneath the lovely, little nest they had so carefully and neatly woven and so carefully fastened in a crotch made by two twigs. It was out toward the tip of a branch quite high above the ground. Mrs. Redeye had taken great pains with that nest. It was just a little deeper than any nest she had ever made before. This was that she might feel sure that none of the babies would fall out of it when left alone.

But a baby had fallen out, a baby that seemed too small and young to have crawled up to the edge and tumbled out. Yet it appeared to have happened. Returning with food for her always-hungry darlings, she had missed one in the nest. It was on the ground underneath. Was it an accident? Accidents do happen even when it seems that they can't. Sammy Jay had been seen in that tree. Blacky the Crow had been in the neighborhood. Redeye and Mrs. Redeye hadn't seen either of them, but some of the neighbors had. There were dark tales about both. Gossip had it that both had been guilty of robbing the nests of other birds. But gossip doesn't always tell the truth. That is one trouble with gossip.

"Sammy Jay has been around," said Redeye in a worried tone.

Anyway, no one had seen either Sammy Jay or his big, black cousin at the nest of the Redeyes. There was nothing to be done for the baby on the ground. In the nest there still were four babies for whom something could be done and must be done. Four mouths were almost constantly wide open begging for food, and that food must first be found, then brought to be dropped into those open mouths. So while Mr. and Mrs. Redeye felt dreadfully about the lost one they were too busy to think much about it. They had to think about food and finding it. When the bird folk go to market they are not troubled by high prices. They never think "what will it cost," but "where will I find it."

It was on the afternoon of the next day that Redeye arrived home with an extra fine billful of things that baby Vireos like best to discover that another precious baby was missing from that nest. He was so upset that for an instant he forgot his billful of food and it was snatched from his bill by the greedy young Cowbird left to the care of his hard-working little mate and himself by its mother, Sally Sly.

Mrs. Redeye joined him and in a flash her billful of food had gone the way of the other and the young Cowbird was demanding more. With sorrowful cries they flew down to the ground. This time they did not find the missing baby. Not far away there was a flash of blue. Redeye saw it.

"Sammy Jay has been around," said Redeye in a worried tone.

"Do you think he did it?" cried Mrs. Redeye.

"He could have. I don't like to think he did, but he could have," replied Redeye.

"Of course, it could have been an accident," said Mrs. Redeye.

"Could it! If our baby fell out of the nest, why don't we find him on the ground?" asked Redeye.

Mrs. Redeye shook her head. "I have heard say that Sammy Jay eats little birds sometimes. I don't know how he can do such a dreadful thing, but that is what I have heard," said Mrs. Redeye in distress.

"It doesn't do to believe everything we hear. You know that, my dear. Just the same it is strange, very strange we can't find that baby of ours. I don't like it. I don't like it all all," said Redeye.

"Thief! Thief! Thief!" screamed Sammy Jay from the far edge of the Old Orchard.

Mrs. Redeye flew up to the nest and sadly looked into it. There were only three babies in it now, and one of these was the greedy, young Cowbird now almost twice as big as either of the others. All three had their mouths wide open.

"I hope there won't be another accident," said Redeye as he started to look for something to drop in those begging mouths.

Was it an accident? He wished he knew.

The next story: "Sammy Jay Is Indignant."

It will cost you plenty points to let your moods govern your moves, especially in the bidding. The player who acts upon a temper, or upon a mood he has attained because of a succession of events, is pretty likely to rue his emotionalism. But since there are players with that type of nervous system, or mind, or whatever it is, and since some of their opponents have them figured out, many an unwise bid and double gets made.

North was tickled to death with the denouement, sitting as he did "over" the doubler with the A-K of trumps.

East and West were a bit upset over having lost the preceding rubber, so North decided to take a bit of advantage of the set-up. He had enough raw material to inject a 2-heart free bid in view of the fact that he had three of his partner's suit, with the A-K of it, but decided to see if his flustered opponents wouldn't get themselves into trouble. That was the reason for his pass of West's overcall.

After hearing his partner's diamond rebid, he knew he had enough cards to make that suit a safe sacrifice at a fair height, so stuck in that 3-Heart call. When that was doubled, he was willing to take it out himself into 4-Diamonds if South had not done so, but was much more pleased to see his partner do it, since West doubled.

Even if that contract had been set, his side would have profited, for the opponents could make 4-Spades with the loss of a trick each in spades, diamonds and clubs. But the 4-Diamonds doubled got made, as South played so as to lose only one trick apiece in spades, diamonds, and clubs after he ruffed the heart A lead.

How to Increase Pachysandra Plantings

IF YOU have plantings of Pachysandra, the evergreen ground-cover, and desire to increase its usefulness, now is the time of year to divide thickly growing plants and replant them.

You may wish to use additional Pachysandra plants to cover bare areas, especially under trees, where grass is hard or impossible to grow. In addition to being one of the most useful ground covers, the flowers of Pachysandra have a spring brightness of their own. The flowers, which are white, open in the spring and are especially attractive to bees.

While Pachysandra can be propagated by cuttings, an easier method is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This method calls for digging up old plants and separating and detaching their runners, as illustrated. Each one of these root-bearing runners can then be replanted as an individual plant.

Pachysandra is desirable as a group cover since it is not apt to die out, due to attacks of insects or disease, once it is established. It sometimes is afflicted with what is known as Pachysandra blight if it is grown in exceptionally wet places. The blight is really a fungus disease which causes large blotches on the leaves, as illustrated, and cankers on the stem.

To control blight on Pachysandra, dig up the infected plants and then spray the remaining ones with Bordeaux mixture. Repeat the spraying again in about 10 days.

On some occasions Pachysandra becomes afflicted with euonymous scale or San Jose scale. A dormant spray should be used to control attacks of either one of these.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

A sturdy Scotchman spent two years in a Nazi prison camp because he couldn't shake off his Aberdeen upbringing. Once he had escaped from his captors and was about to cross the Rhine in a rowboat when two Nazi officers appeared suddenly on the scene.

Apparently they mistook him for a French boatman, for they indicated in sign language that they desired to be ferried across the river. The Scotchman obliged them, and they were halfway up the hill on the other side before he spoiled everying by hollering angrily after them, "Whist, mon, Where's me th-r-ree and ninepiece far-r-re?"

Jack Cominsky of the Saturday Review once boasted of a system he had invented to preserve domestic tranquility. "The day we were married fifteen years ago," he said, "we decided that really important decisions were to be left to me. Small everyday decisions were left to my wife."

"How has your system worked out?" asked Amy Loveman.

"Perfectly," said Cominsky. "There hasn't been a single hitch in the entire fifteen years. Of course," he added thoughtfully, "no really important decision has come up yet."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. THE COATING THAT'S KILLING AMERICA'S PESTS

After application; PESTROY DDT particles rise to top of coating, form crystalline film. This DDT film kills insects that touch it. DDT, absorbed through nerves in bug's feet, causes paralysis—brings sure death to flies, ants, mosquitoes, roaches, moths, silverfish, many other insect pests. And PESTROY DDT keeps killing, day after day. A new type of synthetic resin binds PESTROY to any surface, prevents brushing off, blowing away.

Start Work On New Plant

Construction of a $50,000 Swan company dry cleaning-laundry plant was under way today at 165 Park avenue west. Permit for the two-story structure was issued yesterday.

One of the plant's main features will be a "drive-in" service, according to Gordon A. Schwan, 747 Arlington avenue, owner-operator.

The concrete block, fire-proof structure will be set back 35 feet from the street, to allow easy access via a marquee-topped driveway, for customers who want to deliver or pick up their own laundry or dry cleaning, Schwan said.

The plant is scheduled for completion next January. Employing from 50 to 75 persons, it will have all automatic equipment, including a special, "three-way" garment storage vault, according to Schwan.

Blames Eviction In Ashland Fight

ASHLAND—Serving of eviction papers on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harvey, parents of two children, was blamed by Harvey in police court Tuesday for a fight between the two which brought them into court on assault and battery charges. Harvey had filed a counter suit after his wife, Blanche, had him arrested. He was fined $100 and costs and both parents ordered by Judge H. E. Andrews to provide better care for their children.

The judge said he would place the children in county custody if his order is not obeyed.

Harvey is in Ashland county jail pending payment of the fine.

"UNBLOCK" your DIGESTIVE TRACT

And Stop Dosing Your Stomach With Soda and Alkalizers

Don't expect to get real relief from headache, sour stomach, gas and bad breath by taking soda and other alkalizers if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.

In this case, your real trouble is not in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested. And when it gets blocked it fails to digest properly.

What you want for real relief is not soda or an alkalizer—but something to "unblock" your intestinal tract. Something to clean it out effectively—help Nature get back on her feet.

Get Carter's Pills right now. Take them as directed. They gently and effectively "unblock" your digestive tract. This permits your food to move along normally. Nature's own digestive juices can then reach it. You get genuine relief that makes you feel really good again.

Get Carter's Pills at any drugstore—25¢. "Unblock" your intestinal tract for real relief from indigestion. —Adv.

Evidently there has been some talk about some of the veteran softballers here in town losing their "staff."

John Villella sends along a note advising me of this. writes John:

"I have heard a lot of talk that the old timers are all washed up. Well I have a team here that will play anyone in town for any amount."

Coaches would be Tom Farell and John Stash with Villella as manager.

There probably won't be too many fans doubt Villella's choice —and chances are the above players would make it interesting for any team in Mansfield.

Tony Lucadello and Jimmy Milgoff, the Chicago Cub scouts who handled the tryout camp here Monday, were mighty pleased with the response.

Besides being one of the largest the Cubs have conducted this summer, the number of fine ball players was one of the things that impressed the two men.

Possibly two or three of the boys who displayed their talent here will be signed to a Cubs' contract.

"Our organization is making every effort to stage a baseball school here next summer," Lucadello stated yesterday.

Entries for the city tennis tournament were coming in fast yesterday and all were to be in the mail by midnight. Today noon the pairings were to be drawn up by the tennis tournament committee.

Members of the committee are W. E. "Wattie" Slabaugh, Ruhland Islay and Hollis Quinian

Individual trophies will go to all champions.

Pine Will Return To Ring

When Lloyd Pine, 136, Barberton, takes on Tommy Welch, 135, Delaware, in one of the six-rounders on the pro fight show at the Armory next Monday night, there will be an added sidelight to the bout.

Making a comeback in the ring in preparation for a tour of South Africa, Pine will be remembered by local fight fans for his scraps here several years ago.

In one of his last bouts here, Pine fought Rex Reese, who is now promoting the shows here. However that bout was the last for Reese and Pine was just getting started.

"Pine was always a crowd pleaser here," Reese said today, "and he's sure to give the fans a lot of action here next Monday."

This bout will be one of three six-rounders set for the Tony Rios-Harry Hart 10-round main go.

Rios, crack Mexican lightweight champ, and Hart, Ohio's ranking lightweight, are expected to provide the crowd with a top-flight leather throwing party.

Only bout yet to be announced for the card is the opener. George Kerestes, Mansfield's wild-swinging middleweight, will be in one corner but Reese hasn't yet signed an opponent.

Dick Alexander, Mansfield, goes against Tiger Jackson, Akron, in the six-round semi-final. Winner of three fights here, Alexander appears to be one of the ranking welterweights in the state.

Alfred Lannes a stablemate of Rios, will face Tiger Wills, Columbus, in another six-rounder.

Etzel Fires 33 In N-J Golf Loop

Ted Etzel of Gorman-Rupp fired a three-under par 33 last evening to pace some of the summer's best golf in The News-Journal loop at Possum Run.

There were plenty of low cards and Etzel had to bang out that sub-par nine to take honors.

Al Hager, one of the hottest swingers in town, was right behind Etzel with a 34. Pete Zeides and Nick Linster fired 35's while R Rachel and Arnold Adams each turned in 36's.

PLAY TIGERS

NEW LONDON—The New London Merchants will endeavor to even up their season series here next Sunday afternoon at the expense of the Mansfield Tigers on Recreation Field. The season record of the locals to date is nine wins and ten losses.

Barbour Is Favored In Ohio Open

PORTSMOUTH, O —(AP)—The 1946 Ohio Open golf championship comes up for decision today over a 36 hole route with at least three former state open title holders in top contending positions.

The role of top favorite however, went to Bill Barbour, 38 year old Cleveland professional who toured the 6,476 yard Elks country club layout in a four under par 68 to pace a field of 127 in yesterday's 18 hole opening round.

Barbour, a former navy storekeeper who served aboard the hospital ship the U.S.S. Bountiful in World War II, fired six birdies on his par breaking rounds, playing more than half the distance in a downpour of rain that led tourney officials to cut the day's play from a scheduled 36 to 18 holes.

He went out in 33 scattering four birdies in the three below par round and came back in 35 for a 68.

Barbour was hard pressed, however, by a trio of professionals who carded 69's. Verg Stinchcomb, Portsmouth pro playing on home grounds, turned in 34-35. Al Marchi of Columbus had 36-33 and Clyde Mumma of Dayton came in with 35-34.

A little farther back in the scoring but definitely in the title picture was a threesome of former state open title winners.

Topping these was Dennis Shute, 41 year old Akron Portage pro who copped the crown in 1929-30-31. Shute fashioned a 35-35—70 yesterday but he's playing a course he likes and hence is rated an outstanding choice. Dennis holds the Elks course record 67 for 18 holes which he set in an invitational here last year and matched again Monday in a pro amateur tune up

Lopat Again Halts Tribe

CHICAGO —(AP)— Southpaw Eddie Lopat probably will remain in the American league as long as the Cleveland Indians are around.

The stocky portsider hasn't been able to win a game against the last place Philadelphia Athletics but his all-time record against the Indians is nine victories and no losses.

The Indians' latest fruitless effort against Lopat occurred last night. The Sox Moundsman doled out six hits while his mates clubbed three Cleveland throwers for 16 hits and an 11 to 1 triumph.

Chicago started with a run in the first, added another in the second and then poured nine tallies across the plate in a nightmarish fifth inning that produced eight hits, three walks and a wild pitch.

Steve Gromek, luckless Indian right hander who hasn't won a game since June 28, was shelled from the hill in that frame and was succeeded by Les Webber and Pete Center.

The loss was the third straight and the 11th of the year for Gromek who last year paced tribal hurlers with 19 victories. He has won only four games this season.

Final Practice Tonight for Jr. Olympics

Final practice will be held tonight at the Senior high cinder oval for the city meet Friday night which will determine Mansfield's three teams for the national Junior Olympics at Cleveland Aug. 24.

Harry Mehock, who is running the local Olympic drills, stated this morning that three full teams will be taken to Cleveland.

Close to 40 athletes have been working out for several weeks in preparation for the local meet Friday night starting at 6:30.

Winners of the three groups—junior, intermediate and senior—will compete at Cleveland against boys from six states in the huge Municipal stadium down by the lakefront.

After the three teams have been decided, Mehock will spend the remainder of the time leading up to the nationals in getting his squad in the best possible form.

Canton, Cleveland, Akron and Lorain are a few of the other cities in Ohio who will have boys competing in the big Cleveland show.

One of the best all-around performers in the junior division has been Jim Bailey.

Jim Schuler and Harold Leppert have been turning in good times in the 880-yard run. Harry Osbun in the shotput, Willie Fowler in the high jump, and Tommy Tucker in the broad jump are a few of the city's young performers whom Mansfielders will see in action Friday night.

Olympic Candidates

Jim Schuler, left, and Harold Leppert work out for a place on the Mansfield Junior Olympics senior team that will compete in the national meet at Cleveland on Aug. 24.

21st Running of Big Harness Classic Today Is Wide Open

By SID FEDER

GOSHEN, N. Y.—(AP)—The 21st Hambletonian — and probably the widest open of them all—comes off today, with a field of 11 going after a $28,047 winner's jackpot and two of the fanciest-priced steppers in trotting history are favorites.

These two are Chestertown, the California choice who cost Walter Smith of Los Angeles $40,000 only a week ago in trotting's biggest money transaction in 35 years, and Victory Song, who became the top-priced yearling of all time when he was bid in for $37,000 two years ago by Mrs. James B. Johnson, jr., at Rochester, Mich.

These two, along with Deanna, the two-year-old champion of last season, and Westfield Girl, a $25,000 filly from the barn of E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill., are generally regarded as most likely to cut up the largest part of the $51,845 bankroll that will be sliced among the first six three-year-olds to get home quickest.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected to jam Bill Cane's kite-shaped Good Time track. The first mile heat is at 3 p. m. (EST) today. Heats will be run at one-hour intervals until some stepper wins two of them.

There is no money-back guarantee that one of these four is going to win even though Chestertown was virtually assured of having the veteran Tom Berry in the sulky behind him, despite a painful spill Tom took on the track yesterday, and Deanna was to be driven by 73-year-old Ben White, winner of four of these corn tassel derbies in the past.

The long-shot stabbers gave more than a light look-in to such as Van Riddell, undefeated two-year-old who will be driven by his owner, Canadian parliament member Earl Rowe. Onolee Hanover, a consistent and hard-working filly who cost C M Saunders, Toledo, O., mill-owner $25,000 and Walter Spencer, stablemate of last year's winner driven by Harry Pownall.

Rounding out the field are Locomotive, a tall husky owned by Octave Blake of Plainfield, N. J., Scotch Fez, from the barn of potato-grower S. S. Wathen, and his son, Wendell, of Fort Fairfield, Me.; Don Scott, bred by tobacco man Will Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Mrs. Daryl Parshall's Argyla of Millbrook, N. Y.

Mat Show Goes Rain Or Shine

Promoter Earl Myers isn't pessimistic but just in case of rain Thursday night, he has made arrangements for his outdoor wrestling card to be held inside.

A tag-team bout between Whitey Walberg and Stacy Hall and Jack Vansky and Whitey Whitler headlines the show.

In one-fall 30 minute bouts, Walberg meets Whitler and Hall goes against Vansky.

NAMED AT IBERIA

IBERIA — Ronald Somerville, who has been coach and social studies instructor at North Robinson during the past two years, has been signed as coach at Iberia high. He succeeds Michael Embreus who resigned.

Bill Veeck to Speak Before Kiwanis Club

Bill Veeck, the new owner and president of the Cleveland Indians, will be the guest speaker at the Aug. 15 luncheon of the Kiwanis club.

T. E. Culler, program chairman of the Kiwanis club, announced today that a joint meeting with Rotary will be held that day.

Veeck has given the baseball fans in this area a different type of game since he and his associates took over several weeks ago.

Known for his showmanship at Milwaukee where he was owner and president of the Brewers of the American Association, Veeck has brought the same color and entertainment to the Indians.

Veeck was wounded while serving with the Marines in the South Pacific and today he is still walking with a cane and has a brace on his foot. He still must enter the hospital for periodic operations.

Giants Slash Dodger Lead to Two Games

By JACK HAND, AP Sports Writer.

Mel Ott's lowly Giants, 15 games behind the leader with 52 to go, are in a hopeless position in the National league pennant race but you never could prove it by the contending Cardinals and Dodgers.

When the Brooks really needed to take one with a chance to stretch their lead to a full three games, last night, they couldn't bump off their rivals from Manhattan.

Lefty Dave Koslo, touched for five hits in three innings, tightened up and held the Dodgers hitless the rest of the way in recording his 12th victory of the season, 5-2. The result reduced Brooklyn's first place margin to two games because the Cardinals were rained out of their game at Pittsburgh.

Chicago pulled out of a three-game losing spin to smother Cincinnati, 3-0, on Claude Passeau's four-hit pitching in a game played at Crosley field. If the Bruins, who still trail the Dodgers by 7½ lengths, ever do make the grade to a second straight pennant they can thank the Giants.

While Ott's crew has been manhandling the two leaders, they have been acting like lambs every time Chicago comes to town, bowing 13 times in 17 meetings.

The hustling Boston Braves proved they still can beat the Phillies although outhit by a 10 to 5 margin when they rushed over two runs in the 12th inning to earn a 3-1 edge for Johnny Sain who opened the victory spurt with a single.

In the American league, the Boston Red Sox marched another step closer to clinching the pennant with a 5-0 romp over Philadelphia behind Tex Hughson's five-hit pitching.

Bobby Doerr blasted his 15th homer of the season with Wally Moses on base in the first inning to start Hughson off to his 12th triumph. It was Dick Fowler's 11th setback.

Two unearned runs on three St Louis errors helped Detroit record a 3-1 victory over the Browns despite a four-hit pitching job by Jack Kramer. Al Benton's fourth win enabled the Tigers to climb to within a single game of the second place New York Yankees whose scheduled night game at Washington was postponed by rain.

Chicago's White Sox enjoyed one of their best hitting days on the season, bowling over Cleveland, 11-1 on 16 blows good for 24 bases.

COUNCIL GETS HOSPITAL PLAN AT CRESTLINE

Delegation Seeks Vote on Proposal For New Building at November Election.

CRESTLINE — Village council today had under advisement a request from a delegation of citizens to place a proposal to build a new community hospital before the voters at the November election.

Councilmen agreed to study the proposal for financing the project and report to the committee, headed by John Berger.

Council accepted the bid of the Braun Bosworth company, Toledo, on the $150,000 sewage disposal bond issue. The Toledo firm, one of three bidders, offered 1.96 per cent interest.

Mayor A. P. Sonner reported $133.30 received in fines. The July payroll amounted to $2,242.

Clerk Marie Schill was asked to advertise for bids for a new police cruiser. Council passed an ordinance accepting the plat of the Laughbaum subdivision on South Thoman street.

YIELD HIGH

13 Iberia Farmers Harvest 8,000 Bushels of Grain.

IBERIA — Farmers north of Iberia harvested approximately 8,000 bushels of grain during the past week, according to Ted McClarren.

The grain was threshed by one threshing unit and two combines as the 13 farmers in the neighborhood threshing ring cooperated to haul the new grain to the mills and granaries for storage. The acreage yields are high this season with wheat producing 25 to 40 bushels per acre and oats yielding 50 to 80 bushels.

Other farmers in the ring are Arthur Crider, William Hobson, Christie Eichler, Charles Timson, Robert Shaffer, L. B. Kerr, Clarence McClurg, Charles Manring, Earl Brady, Othel Miller, Clayton Brady and Wilmer Miller.

SHELBY — Junior and senior life saving classes will be conducted by the Shelby Red Cross every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday in the municipal park pool between 5:30 and 6:30 p. m., beginning August 12, Instructor Roger Boott announced today.

Junior classes will be held for Shelbyites aged 12-16, and senior life saving classes for those over 17 years of age.

GAME POSTPONED

SHELBY — Because of a wet field the game scheduled between the CIO-Steelworkers' union and the Shelby Salesbook company in the Shelby Softball league was postponed until Friday night. The remaining games this week on the revised schedule include tonight, Eagles vs. Laubie's and Thursday, Laubie's vs Depot.

ASK STUDY OF SEWER RENTAL

Ashland Seeks Added Funds to Pay Police and Fire Department Raises.

ASHLAND— Council has asked Mayor Glenn B. Haller to investigate sewage rental policies in Shelby and Wooster as a means of increasing revenue and discussed the possibility of charging for garbage collection, now a free service in Ashland.

Seven of Ashland's 13 police are now paid from funds realized through parking meters. The addition of 65 new parking meters in the near future will up this source of revenue.

New revenue must be found before Ashland police and fire department personnel can have their long-requested raise in salaries, Ashland city council informed representatives of the two departments.

The renewed request by police force members brought no promise from city council because of an avowed lack of funds.

Neither was Fire Chief Paul Soles given any promise of salary increases or increased personnel for his department which he states is badly undermanned as well as underpaid.

"We have fine new equipment but not enough men to operate it," declared the fire chief in protesting against a staff of only five paid firemen augmented by volunteers.

Mrs. Fruz Varga, girls' athletic teacher, and Mrs. Bernice Cowell Miller, grade teacher, resigned to take over household duties. The vacancies were not filled.

The resignations of Marion White and Clyde Thrush as bus drivers were also received. O. D. Kincaid was hired to succeed Thrush but no other application for the other vacancy was received.

Fails to Make Turn, Lands In Ashland Jail

ASHLAND—Leon A. Brouillet, jr., 18, Templeton, Mass., hitchhiker, is being held in Ashland city jail for failure to pay $25 fine and costs assessed against him Tuesday after he had made a shambles of the southwest corner of Claremont avenue and Main street in what turned out to be his maiden effort at driving a car.

The youthful hitch hiker, picked up in east Ashland by Robert J. Gibbons, Lakewood, was driving Gibbons car at the latter's request when he failed to negotiate the turn from Main to Claremont avenue and smashed into a state highway marker and a four-pump island of a service station occupying the corner. Firemen extinguished a blazing pump and a fire in the car motor. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

Questioned by police Brouillet admitted it was his first effort at driving a car, despite the fact he had told Gibbons he was an experienced driver.

CITY NEEDS 5,000 FOR ITS INDUSTRY

Drive to Obtain Rooms For New Workers Gets Under Way.

Serving with Berkey are Mayor Roy Vaughn, John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce; William Allen, director Veterans' Information Center; A. L. Allen of the Empire Steel corporation; Desmond M. Walker, representative of the CIO; Harry Dailey of the Westinghouse Electric corporation; Handley; Paul Hauserman, representative of the AFL; Lewis Hartman of the Hartman Electric company; Glenn L. Bierly of the Mansfield Brass and Aluminum corporation, and John M. Schroeder of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

In reference to the employment figures Handley said that "I believe the 5,000 figure can be called a conservative estimate."

He went on to say that while the great majority of the employe recruits are for industry, expansion of the downtown business district and the vast amount of construction work now under way and that planned for the future will entail hundreds of additional workers.

"As to the business district, we have orders from one of the expanding retail establishments for 176 office workers to be ready for work when it completes its expansion program," Handley said.

Various Jobs Open.

Workers who will be among those called in the recruiting drive will include those to fill jobs as moulders, hot mill workers, general foundry laborers, factory assemblers, inspectors, truckers, sales workers and professional workers of different types.

Needed in the construction field are carpenters, plumbers, bricklayers, painters, truck drivers, laborers and other types of workers for residential and business building.

Handley said that he has been promised complete cooperation from state and regional offices of the United States Employment service. Earl Smith, assistant veterans' replacement officer for the USES in Ohio, and John Craig, assistant USES regional director, were in Mansfield recently to confer on the local problem.

"All the men to be recruited for Mansfield jobs will be carefully 'screened' before they are certified for employment," Handley said. "We have been given assurance that only desirable persons will be certified."

He added that the men will be first "screened" in their home communities. They will be "screened" again before they are accepted by the Mansfield USES office and a third time by various employment managers before they are approved as desirable citizens and employes of industry.

In reference to the "Rent a Spare Room" campaign, Civic Chairman Berkey said that it is perhaps the most vital phase of the "entire Greater Mansfield movement."

"Before the USES will certify these workers to our community, we must first assure the government agency that we will provide them with suitable sleeping quarters.

"Rooms in private residences are our only solution. There was some discussion of erecting barracks to accommodate these new men, but it was decided first to see how Mansfield would respond to a community appeal for a community undertaking.

"The success of this room rental drive will depend in a large measure on the response from those persons who never have rented sleeping rooms in their residences. These citizens form our best potential source for spare rooms."

Berkey urged every Mansfielder to "take a little time and think over this situation."

Needs City's Help.

"Many persons may give this undertaking only a few moments of thought. We are strongly urging thorough consideration and favorable decisions to help out in a community cause, one that would provide a source of extra income in addition to the benefits the entire community will derive from it.

Berkey said that householders could also be helpful in carrying on the rental drive by being prepared to state to the canvasser what they can do in the way of renting a room.

The women canvassers being organized by Mrs. Clark Brook are to meet in the Chamber of Commerce assembly rooms for instructions Friday at 3 p. m.

SEES AIRPORT DECISION SOON

M'Gregor Says City Will Know This Month When Air Lines Will Use New Port.

built was kicked back to the county today.

Harold Gerold, division engineer of the state highway department at Ashland, reported that his department had cancelled its plans for making surveys of possible sites for the new road.

Calling the project one of "very high priority," Gerold said that the state road laws nevertheless prevented the state department from taking initial action.

"The county must make the survey and obtain the land for a right of way before the state can step into the picture," he said.

Previously it had been reported that the state highway department had set aside some $13,000 to make the survey.

State Will Help.

Gerold said, however, that he has no doubt the state highway department is still vitally interested in a new Route 13 around the airport and would cooperate with the county after the latter initiates action.

County commissioners, the local government authority which must initiate the project, today said they would consider taking action to get the new road started soon.

Commissioner John W. Selby said it was "of the utmost importance to have a hard-surfaced, first-class road around the port to carry the heavy traffic which enters Mansfield from the north."

At present, the county maintains its gravel-surfaced substitute road around the west side of the port This road was built with city and county money when the original State Route 13 was abandoned to make way for the airport two years ago.

BRUTAL KILLER SIGNS THREE CONFESSIONS

Says 'George Murman,' His Bad Side, Led Him to Rob and Kill.

two separate individuals in the same body, he replied, "I don't know."

Psychiatrists were hard-pressed to trace the circumstances under which the youth's strange personality developed. He came from a good, Catholic family. His father worked as a watchman. His mother, Margaret, 40, maintained a pleasant home for him, his father and a brother, Jerry, 14. She took in sewing to help finance Bill's education.

Despite loving care, Heirens was involved in 24 burglary cases by the time he was 10, according to police.

His murder of the Degnan child was strikingly similar in many respects to another sensational Chicago crime—the kidnap-slaying of 14-year-old Bobby Franks by Nathan Leopold, jr., and Richard Loeb, in 1924.

Nation Shocked.

In both cases the victims were children, and the cold-blooded brutality of the crimes shocked the nation. Heirens was a bright student at the University of Chicago. Leopold and Loeb, brilliant students at the same university, were convicted of murder and mutilation.

Both families received ransom demands. But before either could pay their children's bodies were found.

Loeb and Leopold were sentenced to Joliet prison, receiving 99 years for kidnaping and life for murder. Loeb was killed in prison a few years ago by another convict.

Despite his police record in his early teens, Heirens worked in a flower shop and turned over his earnings to his mother. The proprietor of the shop described him as "very honest."

After his capture, he said fun and excitement—for George Murman—were the motives for the burglaries.

He killed Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43, a brunet divorcee, because she surprised him while he was burglarizing her apartment. He gave the same motive for the slaying of Frances Brown, former WAVE.

Since his indictment he has expressed willingness to cooperate with scientists in a study of his fiction-like dual personality. Several phychiatrists have suggested that he be imprisoned for the rest of his life, rather than be electrocuted so the study can be made.

BUYERS STILL CAUTIOUS IN MART TODAY

Individual Stocks Rise But Many Leaders Continue Downward Drift.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Individual stocks held to the rising side in today's market while many leaders duplicated their downward drift of the previous sessions.

Buying caution, brokers suggested, still was based partly on the idea that the list had technically corrected the July relapse and was more or less vulnerable.

In the backward division were Bethlehem, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, North American, Anaconda, General Electric, J. C. Penney, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio and Dome Mines.

Resistant were Pennsylvania Railroad, Spiegel, American Woolen Preferred, Republic Stetel, U. S. Steel, Goodyear, Woolworth, Boeing, Curtiss-Wright "A" Kennecott and Johns Mansville.

chairman of the house rules committee. He was defeated.

The day's results in brief:

MISSOURI — Senator Briggs overwhelmed two opponents to win the Democratic nomination for the seat to which he was appointed as Mr. Truman's senate successor in 1945. Also one-sided was the victory of James P. Kem, Kansas City attorney, in the five-man race for the Republican senatorial nomination.

VIRGINIA—A record-breaking Democratic primary turnout of around 220,000 gave Senator Byrd, who has served since 1933, a 60,000 vote victory over Martin A. Hutchinson, Richmond lawyer.

WEST VIRGINIA — Senator Kilgore ran far ahead of J. Buhi Shahan, former state purchasing agent, for Democratic renomination. Republicans nominated Thomas Sweeney of Wheeling, former state senator.

FHA $10,000 CEILING PUT ON HOUSING

Maximum Rental Set at $80 in Effort to Encourage Low-Cost Homes.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Houses built for personal use that would cost more than $10,000, or would rent for more than $80 a month, can not be authorized for construction, Federal Housing Administration officials disclosed today.

In order to encourage production of lower-cost housing, a ceiling of $10,000 was clamped on construction. Housing projects are approved only if their maximum unit rental is to be $80 a month.

FHA officials said an average of 50 homes and housing projects, ranging from single unit dwellings up to projects to accommodate as many as 400 families, were approved weekly by the agency in southern Ohio alone.

The demand for new homes is astonishing in view of material shortages, the FHA said.

Once FHA approves a plan for a house and the builder receives his "HH priority," his troubles begin. The scarcity of building materials is his first big headache.

FHA pointed out that the scarcity was the result of sudden demands by buyers on the market and that consequently there was nothing for harassed home-builders to do but wait for the situation to ease.

Officials stressed that without the priority system, builders of lower-cost housing would be left completely in the cold when they sought material. No dealer would sell to a small buyer, they explained, when a larger purchaser of expensive types of materials was bidding, too.

This was demonstrated, according to FHA, last fall when all controls on building were lifted and low-cost builders were stranded.

The present method of approving only low-cost homes for veterans was instituted last March. FHA men admit that this did not cure the shortage situation, but at least put all buyers on an equal basis.

Ohio Cities Making Frantic Search For Revenue Sources

(No. Three in a series of four stories on the financial condition of Ohio cities.)

By KEN DAVIS

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Like hooked fish, Ohio's impoverished cities are flopping around frantically seeking new sources of revenue free of the limitation imposed on the traditional real estate levy.

The many cities in the state facing bankruptcy are triply grieved, for they beat up their pocketbooks with depression relief expenditures, they are trying to cope with constantly rising costs of government and they labor under the inflexible 10-mill property tax limitation imposed on local government by the general assembly in 1933.

"This constitutional provision—which was vigorously opposed by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce," wrote the late A. Graves Williams, president of the chamber, "undoubtedly is the largest single factor back of the epidemic of unorthodox local revenue measures in Ohio."

The Ohio chamber equally was against two of the more colorful measures evolved by desperate municipalities — the consumers' utility tax and the payroll and income tax.

Court Halts Tax.

Youngstown, Columbus, Portsmouth, Zanesville and Hamilton all planned escape from their financial worries via the former, until the state supreme court stepped in and kicked their hopes glimmering.

That high tribunal held that the state, through its tax on gross receipts of public utilities, had reserved for itself this field of taxation and that Youngstown, where a test case was launched, had no right to invade it.

The decision rested on that long-held theory of taxation that taxes should be segregated by the levels of government—a theory which has greatly narrowed the field of new revenue for local governments.

Estimating $400,000 had been collected and held in escrow at the time of the decision, Youngstown's mayor Ralph W. O'Neill sadly commented: "This is a terrible blow to the city's financial future."

Youngstown figured approximately $240,000—which it had expected to realize from the tax this year—into the city's 1946 budget. Even with that anticipated revenue, the city was forced to turn to refunding bonds within the 10-mill limit to balance the budget.

"It will throw a definite monkey wrench into the city's financial picture," declared Portsmouth's city manager, Ernest Littleton.

Zanesville talked of halting a fall referendum on a 5 per cent utilities tax but Columbus' city attorney Richard W. Gordon asserted "this case is by no means closed." The state's capital city then hustled out to get Youngstown to appeal the supreme court's ruling, with Columbus supporting.

Still alive and kicking up plenty of talk in municipal circles is Toledo's five-year plan of taxing payrolls and incomes. The plan, in effect in Toledo since March 1, provides for a one per cent tax on the following:

Wages, salaries and commissions of all residents, or those of non-residents earned in the city; the net profits of all Toledo business or professions, or those conducted by non-residents in the city, and on that part of the net profits of corporations earned in Toledo.

With the municipal utilities tax moribund, at least for the present, it's an even money proposition that most of the cities with coffer trouble will try the payroll-income tax soothing syrup.

Some help to limping budgets has been given by refunding bonds within the 10-mill limit. Youngstown, for instance, this year asked the state board of tax appeals for permission to refund $204,000 in bonds, the only means left it to balance things.

Hard-pressed Steubenville is considering not only a payroll tax, but a city liquor license tax, parking meters and skill board licenses.

Furthermore, most cities have assidiously been pecking away at their bonded indebtedness and have been floating no new issues for the last few years.

The trouble, as city officials well know, is that the honeymoon on bond issues is over. Ohio's citizenry, fed a diet of postwar plans on bond paper, want something tangible in the way of civic improvements, as they showed this spring on a myriad of issues brought before them in primary and special elections.

About the only issues they defeated were those representing current operations. Issues for capital improvements such as new school buildings won going away.

GALION — A petition bearing signatures of 15 residents of South Washington street, protesting expansion of the Malo junk yards, was presented to city council Tuesday night. There was no action on the protest.

No action was taken regarding the petition for the opening of an alley on East Church street.

Obstacles To Production Scanned

BELATED recognition that a decrease in unit production costs is the only way to raise wages without increasing prices appears to be taking form in the minds of some union leaders who are urging more output per man-hour and less loss of time.

An observable union policy through many years has been to limit individual production by capable workers so that an appearance of equality could be made in behalf of those less efficient or less energetic.

Complaint about this practice has frequently been directed against the building trades unions, even to the extent of drawing criticism from national labor leaders themselves, but the same policy has been noted in many industrial operations, in which newcomers were given to understand just what maximum output constituted "a day's work."

Shift from war production to peace-time products has resulted in at least a temporary reduction of man-hour productivity through inefficiency of some of the workers placed in jobs in which they lacked experience—notably in the automobile industry which has been making distressingly slow recovery.

Thus far wage raises have been eaten up by price increases, and if prices continue to mount there can be no doubt that new wage demands, and resultant strikes, will come along in due course.

The immediate problem, therefore, is to hold profits within reasonable bounds, increase man-hour production, and to prevent, insofar as possible, such price-gouging as has already become apparent in some commodities from which controls have been removed.

'Purge' of Slaughter Succeeds

ODD as it may seem, national interest in yesterday's primaries—held in six states—centered in the unusual situation which developed in the Fifth congressional district in Missouri, where President Truman succeeded in his "purge" against Democratic incumbent congressman, Roger G. Slaughter and effected the nomination of Enos Axtell, who was given the support of the reawakening James Pendergast organization.

Injection of presidential influence into this district campaign, even in Truman's home state, has been deeply resented, although based on the claim that Slaughter had consistently opposed the chief executive's legislative program, and its effects will be watched with much interest as progress is made toward the November election.

Watermelon Festival Time Again

WHILE Johns park is designed primarily to serve the recreational and entertainment needs of children and adults in Mansfield's northwestern residential area, the annual watermelon festival, sponsored by the Johns Park association, has come to be quite generally regarded as a city-wide gala occasion, to which people from all over the city are invited.

To those who remember early steps toward development of this beauty spot, and the difficulties encountered in establishing the park, it comes as something of a shock to realize that next Friday evening's affair will be the 35th watermelon festival—marking more than a third of a century since the first enthusiastic Johns park boosters hit upon this idea of providing a seasonal evening of entertainment.

Noteworthy, in connection with mention of Johns park, is the fact that much voluntary work by residents of that vicinity has been contributed year after year, in the upkeep and improvement of the park grounds, thus providing an example of the possibilities of citizen co-operation in such accomplishments.

Youthful Heirens Tells of Crimes

WHETHER real or feigned, the confession which 17-year-old William Heirens made in Chicago yesterday gives the impression that the youth was in a somewhat dazed condition when he embarked on the night prowl which resulted in the murder of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan last January 7.

Incidents in connection with dismemberment of the child's body seemed especially hazy in the boy's mind as he answered questions on that subject.

A few short sentences in the confession were particularly illuminating: "I left school. We were drinking. I had about six shots. I had gone to my room. I had taken off my coat, prepared for bed. Then it just came to me to go out—and I went out."

It was by chance, he said, that the Degnan home happened to be the one he entered—intending no greater crime than burglary. He was "dizzy" at the time, but dimly remembers that there was someone on the bed and that he strangled her—then carried the body down a ladder, into a nearby cellar, dismembered it with a knife and "deposited the pieces in different sewers in the neighborhood."

By early in the morning it appears that the boy's mind had cleared. He tells of going back to school at 6 o'clock. "Did you go to bed?" was asked. "No, I stayed up and studied," young Heirens replied.

Questions and answers brought out all the ghastly details of the atrocious crime, for which there seemed no reason—or explanation—other than that the youth's mind was in a haze and that at times he was not fully conscious of what he was doing.

It seems no more than incidental that Heirens also admitted the murders of Frances Brown, an ex-Wave, and the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Josephine Ross, a 43-year-old widow, both committed during what were burglary attempts, the boy declared.

More study than heretofore is being given to causes of such behavior and it may be that further probing into the widely discussed Heirens case will help to solve the problem of why some persons perpetrate crimes that mark them as lacking any of the traits that distinguish human beings from vicious beasts of the jungle.

It Could Happen Here--To YOU!

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following editorial by John W. Buchanan, in the Boulder (Col.) Daily Camera, is recognized as such a powerful appeal for safe driving that it is being reproduced in a number of newspapers. The News-Journal presents it here in the hope that it may thus be brought to the notice of all motorists in this area. The tragedy detailed in this editorial could happen here. It could happen to YOU!

By JOHN W. BUCHANAN
Editorial Writer, The Boulder Daily Camera

LET'S SUPPOSE you and your wife and your two little boys plan a picnic in the mountains. Maybe you'll drive up toward Estes Park. The outing will be fun, and you'll forget some of your everyday worries in the pleasure of watching the boys run and romp and play until they're so tired they can't even wiggle.

Now you're ready for the late afternoon ride back home. You plan to drive safely, thinking of the welfare of yourself, your wife and the two little boys curled up together on the back seat. So you drive 30 to 40 miles per hour.

Along the foothill highway you meet an oncoming string of cars, and you remark to your wife that there are a lot of autos on the highway now, and that it's a great wonder there are not more accidents.

Suddenly there is a sickening pain in your stomach and your arms go numb. One of the cars has pulled out into your lane of traffic, trying to pass another car. The scene in front of you seems to spin. You see the flashing windshield of the oncoming car, the whiteness of the little bridge ahead of you, the little green slope of the precipitous ditch to your right. You see another car three feet in front of you.

And so you let loose of the steering wheel and throw your arms around your wife in the hopes of protecting her. In that split second before things black out, you wonder if this is the last time you'll hold your wife in your arms. You think about 30 or 40 miles per hour being a safe driving speed. You think: "Why did he try to pass? Couldn't he see me coming?"

THEN YOU BEGIN to hear strange voices—voices you've never heard before. You begin to see a red glow—somewhere—is it in front of your eyes? You don't seem to be lying in bed. Sharp pebbles hurt your back.

"Don't move them," someone says.

You open your eyes, finally, and see strange faces above you. People tower over you, like the tall, still pine trees at the picnic ground you left a few minutes before. You try to move your arms and can't. They must be broken. You try to move your legs and can't. You look down at them. They're crumpled and bloody. The pain hasn't started yet.

Then—and you hear yourself gasp—you turn your head. One of the little boys is crying and screaming: "Mother!" There is a little bundle under a blanket. That must be the other one.

MOTHER! You turn your head to the other side. You feel blood trickling warmly down your neck. Your wife opens her eyes, and immediately begins the most awful screaming you've ever heard. She grips her chest.

Your own words cannot be heard above her screaming. You try—so hard—to tell them—or ask them. You're sick, and you don't know what you're trying to say. The screaming goes on and on. You measure your breathing with her screams. Cars are gathering. You hear them slow to a stop. You hear doors close. You hear people mumbling: "What happened?" They walk up, one by one and look down at you. You see their lips curl back, and they turn away quickly, saying: "Oh-h-h!"

You hear a siren. The white and black highway patrol slides up. Patrolmen Eminger and Sultz step out. You want to motion toward your wife and you want to tell them to do something for her. She's screaming yet. Each terrible scream tortures your pained body. You want to tell Sultz and Eminger it wasn't your fault.

There are other sirens. White ambulances arrive. The attendants and the highway patrolmen are deciding which of you should go to the hospital first.

* * *

"I THINK SHE'S the worst off," Sultz says quietly. "Take her to the Community hospital. Better take the little boy—just the one—to the sanitarium. The other one's—" his words trail off in a mumble and you can't hear what he's saying. "We'll radio in for doctors."

Eminger heads for the patrol car. "I'll call in for morphine."

"We'll try to bring the fellow in," Sultz says.

The fellow—that's you. You're the fellow who looks up at a perfect stranger and begins to cry like a baby, mumbling: "Why—why did it happen?" "Why did it happen!" "Why did it happen!"

It's too late for you to do anything about it then. But it isn't now. You've got a whole week before that Sunday trip.

IMAGINE yourself a few minutes after the accident. Would you complain if you knew highway patrolmen were conducting a safety check of cars? Would you complain if they gave you and others a ticket for speeding? Would you complain if you, and others, had to get your brakes relined? Would you blame your police officer, your highway patrolman, your local court, if you, or your best friend, were fined for drunken driving?

In that moment, after the accident, you'd unhesitatingly call the drunken driver and the careless driver murderers. If you had a gun in your hand you'd turn it on the man who pulled out of line in front of you. Your wife's screams would make you do that.

Well, you're lucky. You have some time left to fight for safer highways. That irresponsible, careless driver—that murderer of the highways—hasn't pulled out in front of you yet. You still have a chance to help your highway patrolman and policeman to get him.

Russia Gains By Two-Thirds Rule

By DREW PEARSON

PARIS—(By Wireless) — Thousands of words have been cabled across the Atlantic about the peace conference debate over a two-thirds or a majority vote. At first blush this debate sounds like arguing how many angels can stand on the point of a needle. You wonder what it has to do with future peace.

The real fact, however, is that the voting procedure is the essence and the heart of the peace conference. In other words, it is the whole works. And the thousands of words regarding the two-thirds debate actually can be boiled down to just twenty-four words:

Russia has managed to write what she wants into the preliminary treaty drafts and two-thirds vote enables her to keep what she's got.

It's just as simple as that. Under majority rule the anti-Russian nations could rewrite the peace treaties; under two-thirds rule Russia keeps the treaties as they are.

That's why some of the smaller countries are so irate at patient Jimmie Byrnes for not backing them on majority rule. They know that under the two-thirds rule Europe will be partitioned the way Russia wants it, not as the best interests of peace require it, and that this conference had better have the word "peace" struck out and the word "war" inserted just ahead of "conference."

Drops Palestine Business.

Here is what's happening behind the scenes in Paris regarding the British-American tug-of-war over Palestine. One week ago Sunday Jimmie Byrnes, after dining with Prime Minister Attlee, got Truman on the transatlantic telephone and urged him to accept the British proposal for partitioning Palestine into Jewish and Arab zones.

Truman, however, decided he couldn't accept and later informed his secretary of state that the British foreign office had a much better offer on Palestine that it was holding in reserve and he intended to wait until the British put all their cards on the table.

Last Wednesday Byrnes had another talk with Attlee when he apologized for the U. S. failure to accept and the next day Jimmie telephoned Truman that he was washing his hands of the whole Palestine business.

He indicated he had enough to do at the peace conference and would leave Palestine entirely up to the White House. Meanwhile Truman is considering putting his close friend, Ed Pauley, in charge of Palestine negotiations.

Pauley has already handed in a blistering report on the urgent need of action in Palestine with the result that the president has considered the idea of dropping amiable Henry Grady as his top Palestine adviser. However, Loy Henderson and other state department officials are much opposed to firing Grady and there is considerable state department disagreement about the whole thing.

Balkanized Americans Wrong.

If this columnist knows the U. S. A., one of the greatest mistakes we are making is a tendency toward Balkanization — in other words, Italo-Americans are behaving as if they were Italians, Jewish-Americans as if they were Palestinians, Polish-Americans as if they were Poles—rather than as if they were Americans.

They seem to forget that they took no oath to uphold Italy, Palestine or Poland and that splitting of our country into special groups can be disastrous.

Some of these alleged American citizens are threatening to vote next November according to whether Italy is given a soft peace or according to whether Palestine is given to Jews.

Personally, I have long favored a Jewish homeland in Palestine and a fair peace for a democratic Italy but all things can be carried too far. And Balkanized Americans who forget their citizenship by threatening to use the ballot as a club over the head of a president who does not do what they want should be forced to renounce their citizenship. I hope President Truman tells them to go jump in the lake.

Note — Naturalized Americans, most of them extremely proud of their citizenship, received a serious setback when Professor Oscar Lange of the University of Chicago renounced his citizenship to become the Polish ambassador in Washington. To most new Americans the tinplate glitter of a foreign ambassadorship would weigh less than the pure gold of American citizenship.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, August 7, 1926

Building permits were issued during week for five new homes.

Six hundred Tappan Stove company and their families enjoyed outing at North park, following parade from factory, around Central park and out West Fourth street to the park.

Clerk of courts reported that 135 divorce cases were filed in Richland county in year ending June 30.

Daughter was born at Carey to Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Cram, of Louise avenue; daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Brewer, 317 East Third street.

Annual outings of Humphryes Manufacturing company was held at Chippewa lake.

Mrs. Mae Lucas and Harold R. Goss were married at the First Lutheran church by Rev. D. B. Millar.

Fishing for coins dropped in Central park fountain was "a pleasant and profitable pastime" for boys, one boy reporting that he "got more than a dollar."

Dave Boone Says:

I SURE hope the Vatican meets the Protestant church in the plea for an "understanding on the highest levels" "that will bring the power of the whole Christian church into the battle for a just peace and a better world. If the churches can't get together in the drive for a better world, how can the diplomats be expected to?

* * *

It's hard to see why there shouldn't be the fullest and warmest co-operation, forgetting greed or sect, and serving only in the image of the peaceful Man of Bethlehem.

The crucifixion of the world is in the balance.

The church should be leaving nothing undone to make its power, its spiritual force and its glowing influence felt at the peace conference. As a united force it can provide the light and the conscience that are the greatest need of the day.

Timely Editorial

The Tidelands Issue.

The presidential veto of the bill to abandon the federal government's disputed claim to tidelands surrounding the coast of the United States is soundly based. The issue is to come before the Supreme court and should be decided there, on points of law.

For congress to short-circuit the Supreme Court's decision by abandoning the federal claim while the case is pending, which was the effect of the bill Mr. Truman vetoed, would be to settle the tidelands issue on points of sectionalism and business.

Since oil deposits—very important ones—lie under the tidelands and now are being worked by interests which have made arrangements with various states claiming title to the same areas, the opinion of congressmen in the matter is necessarily influenced by local politics. There are more important things at stake in the ownership of the tidelands and the oil reserves of the United States than the exigencies of local politics.—Canton Repository.

Assignment: America

—By KENNETH L. DIXON

Finds $200 a Month Isn't Quite Enough.

BURLINGTON, Colo. — "You would think maybe the cost of living wouldn't have gone up so high in a town this size," said lanky Bruce Channel, wiping the mixture of sweat and mill-dust off the day's growth of beard on his lean face. "But, believe me, it has."

Conflicting echoes of "that's right," and "you tell him, Bruce," and "don't believe him — he's cleaning up," came from the group of wheat farmers and truckers gathered in the weighing-room of the Hart-Bartlett-Sturtevant Grain company elevator.

Grinning at the jibes, this 35-year-old elevator manager went ahead weighing the truck-load of wheat pulled up on the scales outside, still talking as he scrawled rapid figures on a receipt.

"I'd say the cost of living has gone up at least 35 or 40 per cent, not counting clothes," he said. "If you include them too, your dollar doesn't go half as far as it did five years ago. You wouldn't expect that in a town like this, would you?"

Burlington doesn't exactly look like an inflation or boom town. The last official census listed the Kit Carson county seat town's population at 1,280 and although it's grown some, it still doesn't spread very far over the sun-baked great plains region of eastern Colorado.

"I make $200 a month," Bruce said. Then his face broke into a wry grin, "and you can quote me as saying that's not enough to support a wife and four boys."

However, he's lucky in one way. The company provides him with a house. Otherwise, it would cost him $35 to $50 a month to rent one.

"I reckon our groceries run about $90 a month now," he went on, "and that's just about twice as much as it was not so long ago."

Although the Channels now own their car, it still costs upward of $10 a month for gas, oil and repairs—and the time will come when there'll have to be payments on a new one.

Due to his dependents, Bruce gets off easy on taxes, but clothes are something else. His boys are aged 3, 5, 8, and 12, and any parent will testify to the cost of keeping them in shirts and pants, not to mention shoes.

"It will run you close to $50 in winter," interjected a trucker. "Kids clothes cost twice or three times as much as they did five years ago."

Bruce nodded. So there's $150 gone out of the $200. He said it was impossible to estimate what school books and the like amounted to, "except it gets more all the time," and as for doctor bills—"who can figure out how much that's going to be, any year."

Recreation—well, when there's any money left, it goes for that. Bruce gets his largely by playing first base on Sim Hudson's motor company softball team, but kids need a movie now and then and maybe an ice cream cone.

Then there are emergencies, future schooling plans and some $400 a year for insurance premiums on the family.

Bruce sells insurance on the side, making "enough to pay our premiums, with sometimes a little over." And Mrs. Channel does part-time work on the elevator's books.

"But still, even with gardens to cut the grocery bill — like most everybody in Burlington has—$200 a month just won't take care of a family of six nowadays," Bruce concluded, "and it used to do it easy."

And lots of people around town don't make $200 a month.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

There is no recent word from the men who were bounding radio beams off the moon . . . I hear all their signals were returned "opened by mistake."

* * *

The army kept messaging "This is earth calling moon . . . This is earth calling moon . . . over!" The moon replied "You were over before you started."

* * *

A Chicago scientist says rocket trips to the moon may be possible within 10 years . . . about the same wait as for delivery of a new car.

You may laugh at a thought of a trip to the moon but in 10 years it might look attractive . . . It all depends on what they do at Paris.

CONSIDER THE ODDS

Have you ever considered that the odds are 220 to 1 against your going to jail; 900 to 1 that you'll not stay on the job for 10 years or more; and about 1500 to 1 against you ever becoming the boss. Chances are you'll make 231 telephone calls this year; 60 to 1 that you've never been up in a plane; 4 to 3 that you can't drive a car and 70 to 1 that you won't marry a girl you went to school with? And don't ask what that proves.—Des Moines Tribune.

Mysterious Projectiles Falling on Sweden.

WASHINGTON — To be a small nation in this big-power world is a precarious business at best. To be a small nation which was neutral during the war and is still intact today is a piece of good fortune that is breath-taking.

For six long years, the Swedes walked the tight rope of neutrality. They suffered provocation and humiliation again and again. For one thing, German projectiles were fired into Sweden.

At least two such projectiles fell intact and were flown to England, where analysis of their secrets contributed to the defense of Britain. What the Nazis were doing, of course, was to try out a new secret weapon.

For the past three weeks, projectiles from an unknown source have again been falling in Sweden. Two or three have fallen across the border in Norway. It makes it seem as though this were indeed no more than a brief pause between wars.

The projectiles falling in Sweden have no explosive warhead. Most of them have fallen in the forest areas of the north and, therefore, they have done little damage.

But here, in miniature, is the pattern of the war of the future. If those same projectiles had had a warhead of atomic explosive and if they had been directed, in a war, at the industrial centers instead of the wilderness, Sweden would today be devastated and the war would be over. That is the grim reality while the gentlemen around the conference table in Paris talk of peace.

No one in Sweden has ventured to speculate officially on where these projectiles come from. The nervous Swedes are saying to one another, "Don't look now but there's that rocket again." The general direction from which they come is the southeast, which indicates an origin either in Russian-occupied Germany or perhaps farther to the east, in Latvia or Lithuania, now incorporated into the Soviet Union.

Some speculation puts the source on the island Peenemunde off the German coast, in the Baltic. On this island the Nazi concentrated all their experiments on rockets and radio-directed missiles. A dramatic and little-known chapter of the war took place there which may have had far more effect on the outcome than is generally realized.

On Peenemunde, German scientists perfected a new kind of rocket gun. The scientists, with members of the German high command, were celebrating the event in a riotous party when the RAF came over and wiped out almost everything on the island. Superb British intelligence, plus sources of information in the German resistance movement, made this possible. Winston Churchill once said that, if the rocket gun had operated from the Calais area in France, all Britain's cities would have been destroyed.

So far as is known, no one except the Russians have been on Peenemunde since the war ended. It is part of their zone of occupation.

When the rockets first started dropping in Sweden, the Swedish defense staff asked citizens to report them. There were frequent reports in the press of where they had fallen. One fell in a lake in Lapland, and defense experts are digging it up and will analyze it in an effort to determine the source. Now, however, the Swedish military have requested secrecy on where the rockets land. Obviously, such information would greatly aid whoever is firing the projectiles.

Veterans Opposing Evils of Southland.

MEMPHIS—Conflict is the prevailing motif today in the political and economic life of the South. It is erupting more frequently in violence lately in a section of our country that always has had more than its share.

This is the most vivid impression of a three-weeks visit below the Mason and Dixon line.

There will be more conflict, perhaps more bloodshed, as the South continues to adjust itself to new and changing conditions, both economic and political, some growing from the war. The new is clashing on so many fronts with the old.

Industrialization, which always creates problems, was advanced during the war. Industrial conflict is intensified now by the stepping-up of union organization by the AFL and CIO—themselves also in conflict. And a new factor has been introduced which undoubtedly will have far-reaching influence as time goes on.

That is the war veteran. He has returned from far places and has come back, as does anyone who has been away from the South for a time, to see conditions in his native land in new perspective and more clearly.

He wants to change them. This, of course, is not true of all veterans. Some slip back easily into the old setting. But it is true of an intelligent minority, and it is the intelligent minority which always brings about revolutions.

This determination for change exhibited itself in its most violent form in the armed revolt of returned veterans against a sector of the corrupt political machine of Burch Biggs in three eastern Tennessee counties. The veterans rose up at Athens against the usual machine attempt to control elections.

Veterans had a stake in the election with a ticket in McMinn county—jointly supported by them and Republicans—that included a candidate for sheriff, 33-year-old Knox Henry, who ran against Paul Cantrell, the Briggs machine boss in McMinn county. The other two Biggs machine counties are Polk and Monroe. Burch Biggs or his son have rotated in the sheriff's office in Polk county for years. The Biggs machine never has hesitated to use force and gunplay. Now, for the first time, it met force from a new direction.

Significant is the fact that the Biggs machine is in alliance with Boss Ed H. Crump here in Memphis. The two work together in election as well as in the legislature, using the same repressive tactics. The victory for reform in McMinn county may have its effect eventually on Boss Crump's state control.

War veterans also were active in the abortive revolt against the Crump machine here in Memphis in the state-wide election last week. Veterans were among the corps of watchers trained by the CIO. And the Clean Election League to try to keep the count honest in Shelby county. They failed. But they are not done yet.

Long-entrenched machine bossism is a first and obvious target for veterans. It sticks out plain in Tennessee. But veterans are getting perspective, too, on the bigger target of entrenched interests who are represented in many cases by the bosses.

Some, they have learned, use the racial issue to perpetuate themselves in power or recapture power, such as Gene Talmadge in Georgia and Senator Bilbo in Mississippi.

Hope for the future lies in these veterans who are beginning to see the evils in their native Southland.

Farmer's Diary: "Lightning Rods."

WE HAVE lightning rods on the comb of our barn roof. During all the years since the sturdy old bank barn was raised those shafts have stood tall and straight, pointing sharply toward the sky. One at each end, and a third in the middle of the comb, they might seem to be merely an ornament to break the severity of the metal roof.

But those rods are sentinels that guard our premises, in times of great electrical storm. It was Franklin who first extolled the lightning rod, for protecting high towers, barns, homes and skyline buildings.

When a big thunderstorm occurs, clouds are heavily charged with electric power . . . a force pent up, like a reservoir of water, that exerts ever increasing pressure, until it finally must overflow and plunge to earth through the medium of any tree, or spire or high building that offers least resistance to its passage. The crash of a tree, or the splintering, flashing sparks reveal the power of the bolt that sometimes wreaks tremendous damage.

But those pointed metal rods, connected with the deep moisture of the earth, quietly invite the pent-up force of the lightning to flow through, constantly . . . thus, like a hidden spillway in a dam, they relieve a tension and maintain the balance so that a destructive break may not occur.

Family behavior needs its lightning rods. Perhaps one member works away, and returns at night, tired and surfeited with meeting the public all day long. In the quiet and confusion of his home, he may "let down" . . . he may blow off steam, without being misunderstood. There is electric quality in emotions, as there is in a stormy sky . . . a confusion that can wreak havoc, or can be allowed to flow freely away, without damage. What a relief to express ones self, unopposed!

"But what if your boys get to fighting?" a friend once asked me.

I said—"Let 'em fight! They can teach each other things, that it would take their Dad's heart to have to do. You can't dam up a boy's energies—you must give them an outlet . . . as safe an outlet as possible . . . a constructive outlet, if you possibly can."

If home cannot be a place where lively normal folks may be themselves in speech and actions—may bare their deep or their tender feelings and not be misunderstood—then the dam breaks and the crash occurs. Homes should be safety valves—social lightning rods.

Perhaps to keep a home like that, it is necessary to erect spiritual lightning rods such as prayers are conducted over. They used to call them altars in the olden times . . . and families met about them, in lifelong worship. Prayer is, I believe, the constant quiet current that keeps the moral balance, in homes—and nations.

New York Notes

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

You Meet Such Interesting People—(And Aren't You Fascinated by the Things They Like to Eat?)—Ingrid Bergman's gustatory pash is a heaping bowl of sour cream into which she dangles rounds of rye bread and other crusts. Orders it for every meal except dinner . . . Sonja Henie, whose figure is so neat and petite, likes double-scroop chocolate sundaes so well she even eats them for breakfast now and then . . . Nils Asther is the happiest diner in town when he can get "beef a la mode" and potato pancakes—the beef in this instance being pickled in vinegar and served with raisin sauce . . . Kenneth MacSarin's favorite food is eggs — raw, cooked, boiled, scrambled or in malted milks, but preferably raw. His record is 36 at one sitting.

Carmen Miranda has a "Brazilian Bombshell" cocktail named for her at the Studio Restaurant. It consists of equal parts of Portuguese brandy, Spanish cherry and lemon juice. . . . Ruby Zwerling, the Leow's State maestro, is inspired by a delicacy called Duck Orange, which is baked duck with orange peel dressing . . . Toots Shor swoons over Peach Melba with plenty of cointreau and wine. . . Southern fried chicken (and no silverware) is the reason why Johnny Downs can be found so frequently at Topsy's Chicken Roost . . . Milton Berle lives up to expectation when he orders marinated herring and bagles in the early morning at Reuben's.

Dick Haymes can break into a song any time he thinks of Ham Steak Floridian style—ham broiled with pineapple and Oregon prunes . . . Renee De Marco adores eggplant parmigiana . . . Producer Lee Sands is so intrigued with ketchup he pours it over everything but apple pie and coffee . . . The Duchess of Windsor is a sweetbreads fan and likes omelettes, too . . . Vocal coach Al Siegel has a "salade Siegele" named for him at the Tropicana Restaurant in Havana. It consists of grapefruit, orange, pineapple and tomato on lettuce topped off with a very garlicky French dressing.

Merle Oberon can't resist the pastry table at Le Pavillon any more than the ordinary uncelluloid female can, and she is most likely to succumb to a flaky-cream Napoleon . . . Don Ameche prefers his tomatoes stewed (and that's not a pun, son!) . . . Give comedian Lew Parker a big plate of Hungarian goulash and he'll stop telling jokes . . . Greta Garbo adores garlic, and she likes things that come in tins—like anchovies and sardines. She loves to eat in bed . . . Joan Crawford finds it's good for her figure to eat grapefruit after every meal.

Walter Winchell's favorite breakfast is salami fried in eggs . . . Burgess Meredith goes on binges of brioche and coffee . . . Bert Frohman smiles on the whole world when he's full of flapjacks flipped the Aunt Jemima style . . . Laurence Olivier likes cheese blintzes, which he refers to as "crepes suzette with cheese" . . . Carol Bruce, whose dimensions are among the most envied in town, keeps them that way despite the fact that she is crazy about Italian chocolate creams, and eats them unflinchingly from a box on her "Show Boat" dressing table . . . Joe Pasternak, the producer, can't get enough of scrambled eggs and sturgeon.

George Raft likes steak better than anything (inanimate) in the world, and next to steak he likes apple pie and vanilla ice cream. In fact, if you ever have him to dinner you are wasting your time offering him pressed duck or guinea hen with grapes because he just isn't interested in anything that isn't porterhouse, sirloin or filet mignon . . . Dorothy Lamour, possibly because she comes from New Orleans, likes anything at all—from beef to shrimps—as long as it's covered with Creole sauce . . . Martha Stewart's favorite dish is hamburger on toasted roll . . . Joe E. Lewis's favorite dish is Martha Stewart.

Footloose And Fancy Free In Shoes

By MME. QUI VIVE

Heels are getting higher and lower. It is the truth. Spring heels are back again. Some smart play shoes have no heels at all. Some new evening numbers have heels four inches high. You pay your money and you take your choice. Those stilts are a deplorable indulgence, but it seems that nothing can be done about thhe matter.

The foot is pliable, is easily molded to a shape that is not normal. If the heel is upped beyond a reasonable degree, toes will become deformed, corns and ingrowing nails will start up their tormenting occupation, muscles will weaken, the arches will become deformed. But, evidently, some of the sisters don't care.

Along with the new high in heels come some primitive offerings for play time. They have a tropical twist, are known among the manufacturers as "flats." A piece of strong sole leather is selected—about one quarter of an inch thick. It is molded to foot shape, then slots are cut in it. Through the slots are drawn thongs of thin sole leather, finely tooled and with ornamental banding. There are straps around the ankle and over the instep. In some models thongs run between the big toe and the second one.

Spring heels, formerly, have been used only on children's shoes, now they are employed in adult sizes.

The spring heel is a prolongation of the sole. Made of resilient sole leather, it runs under the foot to form the heel. This type of shoe has a leather insole for cushioning and to give springy support. It is a comfortable design and should replace some of the sloppy horrors that our bobby-soxers seem to love with all their little hearts.

This is the season of the year when one is foot-conscious. Hot pavements send feet into a fever. Modern science has shown that the muscles and bones of the feet constantly create heat. When the sun is high in the heavens, we could get along without having heating plants in our trotters.

The skin exudes a certain amount of moisture. If the chemicals deposited by the sweat glands remain on the flesh for any length of time there is bound to be irritation. Hence the need of frequent bathing and the free use of a foot powder to absorb the moisture.

Never wear the same pair of shoes two days in succession if you would have pedal comfort. A frequent change of lasts will ward off calloused spots caused by pressure or friction.

Have new shoes fitted late in the day when the feet have spread slightly. See that there is plenty of toe space. If you can't wriggle your toes freely, the shoe is too small. See that the sole is flexible, giving gently with the movements of the foot, yet firmly supporting the delicate tendons and muscles.

Going Over Score

Washington Letter

—By Jane Eads

WASHINGTON — Horses were hosts at a swank and rather unusual affair the other afternoon at North Wales Manor, the Warrenton, Va., estate of Walter Chrysler, jr.

It was a showing of yearlings from the North Wales stud. In all there were about 23 fillies and colts with proud and fancy family trees. They strutted admirably before guests on the velvet lawn in front of Chrysler's huge stone colonial manor house, built in 1718 by a family named Hooe.

Marine band from Quantico, Va., played softly. A wide variety of liquid refreshments was served.

About 600 guests, most of them big shots in the horsey set with heavy purses, converged on the estate, which stretches as far as the eye can see and has its own highway system.

Maybe such a showing is not unusual to people who pal around with horses, but it was unusual to me.

It seems that Mr. Chrysler has been showing yearlings for the past five years. These are thoroughbred race horse prospects that have passed their first birthday. They go into training this fall. Then after the first of January they are ready for the track.

All horses' birthdays are on the first of January. Even if they were born in April, or September of 1945, they automatically became yearlings on Jan. 1, 1946, and will be two-year-olds on Jan. 1, 1947.

There are about 200 thoroughbreds at North Wales Stud. Many of them are visiting mares. There is a racing string of about 50 horses. Six of these are famous.

There's By Jiminy, son of imported Pharamond 2nd—Buginarug. The mare's sire was Blue Larkspur. By Jiminy won $181,120 and was the leading three-year-old colt of 1944.

Head Play is another famous stallion. He had already sired, up to the end of 1945, seventy-five winners of 367 races reaping $564,348. Sixteen winners of 27 races this year were also sired by him.

Then there's Eurasian. This is his first season at the stud. He won several big stakes and was just $40 short of winning $100,000 on the race track.

Others are Ramillies, Chrysler 2nd, and Hyperionion. The last is by Hyperion and is a full brother to Pensive, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness of 1944. He carries the male strain which dominated English racing in recent years.
